Computers and the internet seem to have invaded every aspect of our lives nowadays and have become an essential part of our daily routine. More so for children, who are more skilled and technically adept at using the internet and all kinds of electronic gadgets. To keep pace with this trend, we explored bringing out an e-version of Vibhuti – our school magazine.

In spite of Vibhuti being an e-magazine, we have tried to maintain the essence of the magazine by retaining the regular features and the look and feel of Vibhuti. Vibhuti 2011 consists of regular features like the Principal's message, Section reports, the school topper's interview and an article from the Resource department. The students' contributions are presented in 'Students Voice', which is a compilation of some of the best articles taken from last year's class magazines. Teachers share their thoughts in 'Teachers Voice'.

In addition to these we have compiled photographs of a plethora of events and activities held during the year in "Kaleidoscope 2010-11".

For the editorial team, bringing out an e version of the magazine has been a new experience and a challenging one. I hope you enjoy scrolling through Vibhuti 2011.

Our Principal, Ms Monica Bhatia has taken a keen interest in the e-magazine and has been an inspiration for the editorial team. I thank the editorial team for their contribution in bringing out this magazine. A special thanks to Ms Rubina Shaikh for the layout and the design of the magazine. I thank Ms Maya and Ms Joyce for editing the student articles.
